APPOINTMENT OF GENERAL MANAGER – EXPLORATION

Toro Energy is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr Mark McGeough to the position of General Manager – Exploration.

With over 25 years' experience as a geologist and exploration manager, Mr McGeough has most recently held the position of Manager of the Geological Survey, Primary Industries and Resources SA (PIRSA).

That role has involved him in promoting geological understanding and exploration investment in South Australia and contributing significantly to the internationally recognised PACE program (with exploration expenditure now at its highest level).

Mr McGeough joins Toro Energy with extensive experience in uranium, gold, copper-gold and base metal mineralisation exploration. During his six years as Exploration Manager with MIM Exploration, he was involved in an extensive range of work, from grassroots exploration to feasibility studies, along with the successful management of joint ventures and Aboriginal liaison throughout operations in South Australia, the Northern Territory and Queensland. Mr McGeough was responsible for the discovery and delineation of the White Dam gold orebody.

Mr McGeough's career has also included positions with Xstrata Copper Exploration, Mt Isa Mines and Saracen Minerals. He holds a Bachelor of Science (Geology Hons) and a Certificate of Education from the University of London.

His appointment to the management team will provide a focus to accelerate Toro's current exploration programs, and the rationalisation and establishment of new exploration opportunities, thereby adding further potential to Toro's existing pipeline of resource development opportunities.
